

Great Reckonings in Little Rooms

A study into rehearsal space in London in spring 2013

Tom Mansfield

ABSTRACT

This report was commissioned by Rob Swain at the Centre for Contemporary Theatre at Birkbeck at the University of London. It aims to present a comprehensive overview of the conditions, dimensions and pricing of theatre rehearsal rooms available in the city. The report comprises two parts – this narrative report and a companion Excel spreadsheet, which contains all the data gathered during the project.

Introduction

For directors, actors and other creative personnel, a good space is a vital element of the rehearsal process. One of the key aims of any director is to establish a safe, supportive space in which the creative forces of the ensemble can easily be released. For producers, finding a rehearsal room in which this can happen without breaking the budget is a tough task. Particularly when working at a fringe or small-scale level, there is often a choice to make between rehearsing in a pleasant environment and being able to pay the actors their expenses, never mind a proper salary. This is not surprising, since rents for all properties in London are notoriously high. Yet, in researching over 300 rehearsal spaces, it has been possible to find many spaces that provide pleasant working conditions without being prohibitively expensive.

This report aims to give an overview of the conditions, size and pricing of rehearsal rooms in London in spring 2013. It comprises two parts, this narrative report document and an Excel spreadsheet which contains all the data gathered, ordered in a variety of ways.

While I have endeavoured to make this report as comprehensive as possible, there are many spaces not included on here. There are spaces listed, both in Contacts and online, which do not have websites and/or have not returned phone calls asking for more information. There are other spaces that don't go to the trouble of advertising, but regularly hire out spaces for theatre rehearsals. And still more spaces throughout London might well be available for hire if asked.

The venues included in this report all have some form of online presence. While many such as the Jerwood Space or the many dance studios, are purpose-built or – refurbished rehearsal spaces, many others are charities that have substantial space that is not used all the time. It is therefore reasonable to hypothesise that, when planning a production, local church halls, community centres, youth clubs and even schools will be well worth asking about hire as rehearsal space. The figures for similar venues in this report could be useful as a guide in negotiating hire rates.

It is worth bearing in mind that many venues included here have different rates for arts purposes, activities by registered charities and commercial purposes. Where different rates have been offered, I have listed the rate for arts organisations that are not registered charities. Commercial rates – for example for shooting film or photography – are likely to be much higher than the rates listed here. On the other hand, if you are working with a company that is also a charity, discounts may well be available. Many organisations on the list are charities themselves and have policies of helping other charitable organisations. VAT may also have an impact on the price. Where possible I have noted the spaces which will charge VAT on top of the listed price, but I strongly advise double-checking with the venue before writing a budget.

It is also important to bear in mind that this report is a snapshot of rehearsal space in London in spring 2013. Like everything else in London, rehearsal space is a dynamic market and prices will be subject to change with time. However, even as time moves forward and prices inflate, this report will hopefully be useful in giving a sense of the spaces and facilities available, as well as remaining as a guide to costs.

Methodology

The research for this project was carried out between Monday 29th April and Wednesday 8th May 2013. Information on rehearsal spaces was gathered through Contacts, the industry bible produced by The Spotlight; through the Genesis Director's Program website at the Young Vic, of which I am a member; through www.rehearsalspaceslondon.com and www.rehearsalstudioslondon.net. Other websites were also identified but pressure of time has meant that not every single space has been listed here. All the information was entered into the attached Excel spreadsheet.

For each organisation providing rehearsal space, I have gathered the following information:

- Name;
- Address;
- Telephone number;
- Email address;
- Website;
- Hours of operation.

I then gathered information on each of the individual spaces at each rehearsal venue, through a combination of researching the organisation's website, email and telephone contact with them. This information included:

- Dimensions of the floor space;
- Whether there is wi-fi access;
- Whether there is access to TV or video projection;
- Whether there is a sound system;
- Whether there is a lighting rig;

- Whether there is a sprung floor for physical work;
- Whether there is a piano;
- Pricing.

Pricing presented something of a challenge since there is no standard approach to venues' pricing policies. Some charge by the hour, some by the day, some by the week. While many, particularly the more 'professional' organisations like Shoreditch Town Hall or the Jerwood Space, offer a number of different prices depending on the length of time the space will be used for, others simply offer a single price.

In order to make comparison easier, I have provided hourly, daily and weekly prices for each space in the study. Where a price has not been provided, I have calculated it based on the information given.

Example #1

	Hourly	Daily	Weekly
Venue A	£15.00	£100.00	£500.00
Venue B	£8.00	£64.00	£320.00
Venue C	£111.88	£895.00	£4,475.00

In example #1 above, Venue A provided prices for the hourly, daily and weekly price brackets. Venue B only provided an hourly rate. A daily rate was calculated by multiplying the hourly figure by 8. The weekly rate was calculated by multiplying the daily figure by 5. Venue C only provided a daily rate. An hourly rate was calculated by dividing the daily figure by 8, and the weekly rate calculated in the same way as for Venue B.

Each price bracket was then divided by the area of the space to give a price per square meter per hour, per day and per week. Given the wide variance in simple price between venues, these figures may be a useful guide to the cost that should be expected in each space.

Finally, I have produced figures detailing the difference between each cost (both flat cost and per square meter for hourly, daily and weekly hires) and the average cost in each bracket.

All the data gathered can be found in the 'Main Sheet' tab of the Excel spreadsheet.

Headline Statistics

Of the 313 spaces listed in the survey, the averages for the basic price break down as follows:

	Cost	No. > avg	No < avg
Average cost per hour	£29.47	120	192
Average cost per day	£224.69	111	200
Average cost per week	£1,085.80	117	193

In each bracket, substantially more spaces are cheaper than the average price. This suggests that a small number of spaces are substantially higher than the average. The same effect is notable when considering the prices per square meter:

	Cost	No. > avg	No < avg
Average hourly cost per square meter	£0.45	109	192
Average daily cost per square meter	£3.34	115	186
Average weekly cost per square meter	£16.16	110	190

This effect can easily be seen in the raw data by looking at spaces such as Alford House, Rochelle School, or Studio A at 3 Mills Studios, which have a difference from the average of more than £2,000. With these spaces removed, the averages become noticeably lower:

	Cost	No. > avg	No < avg
Average cost per hour	£27.17	139	163
Average cost per day	£205.63	120	182
Average cost per week	£993.14	148	154

	Cost	No. > avg	No < avg
Average hourly cost per square meter	£0.44	111	182
Average daily cost per square meter	£3.23	109	184
Average weekly cost per square meter	£15.73	107	185

These averages seem to be a solid baseline from which to work in planning. However, a cost of just under £1,000 per week is likely to be prohibitive for emerging companies. Fortunately, many spaces cost substantially less than this. There are 50 spaces in the survey that cost less than £500 per week. While these are mostly relatively small spaces, some, such as the Mezzanine at Hangar Arts Trust, are large enough to accommodate substantial physical work. The lists below combine pricing information with the area of each space in square meters.

Great Reckonings In Little Rooms: A study into rehearsal space in London in 2013

I have also tried to challenge the general perception that the cheapest spaces must be the smallest by ordering the data by price per square meter on a daily, hourly and weekly basis. Again, the most affordable spaces are listed briefly in this narrative report.

Subsidised and In-Kind Spaces

As well as hiring space from the listings below, it is also worth exploring the options available to emerging directors, producers and companies. These include, but are not limited to, the following:

- The Genesis Directors Programme at the Young Vic often offers space at the Young Vic's St Andrew's rehearsal room to their members. Kirsten Adam is the contact for this (directorsprogramme@youngvic.org).
- The Old Vic New Voices programme has recently set up OVV Lab, which aims to offer subsidised spaces for R&D to emerging artists. More details can be found on the Old Vic New Voices website.
- The Pit Lab at the Barbican has offered in-kind rehearsal space to emerging companies. Email pitlab@barbican.org.uk for further information.
- The Jerwood Space offers discounts for emerging companies. Details can be found on their website here.

For fringe and small-scale productions, it is also worth enquiring with the performance venue whether it's possible to use their space for rehearsals. Many organisations on the lists are able to offer reductions for emerging companies, especially charities. It is invariably worth discussing your production's financial position with rehearsal spaces as many will offer help in exchange for crediting.

How to use the spreadsheet and lists

This narrative report contains a number of lists that can be combined with the Excel spreadsheet. All the rehearsal spaces are listed in order of price on an hourly, daily and weekly basis, as well as on a cost per square meter basis for all three brackets. There is also a list of rehearsal spaces by size.

Once a space is found which meets your budget, search for that space in the 'Main Sheet' on the Excel workbook. This spreadsheet contains more detailed information on each space – size, dimensions, facilities available, and any additional notes, as well as information on how the cost reported here was generated. Bear in mind that any prices highlighted green come from the venues themselves, while prices highlighted yellow will have been calculated by this researcher.

Full contact information for each rehearsal venue can be found on the Main Sheet.

Other resources

The below sources may also be worth exploring when looking for space:

Contacts	The industry 'bible'. A significant cost but useful. However, a surprising number of spaces which advertise in Contacts do not provide much information, and often it's easier to find details of spaces on one of the sites below.
Rehearsal Space London	Good website with lots of information about each of the spaces it hosts. Strong links.
Rehearsal Studios London	Replicates a lot of information found on Contacts. Generally lacks links to the venues' websites but a reasonably useful guide to what's out there.
Casting Call Pro	Long list, often with only phone numbers and no websites.
The Stage	Largely replicates information on Contacts.
Young Vic	Can only be accessed by members of the Genesis Young Directors' Programme (contact Kirsten Adam to join kirstenadam@youngvic.org to join). The list is crowdsourced by the directors on the programme so new spaces appear with reasonable frequency. However, the information provided on each space is limited.
